Starting today, GE makes it hard to goof up pictures.

General Electric announces the Bluecoat with the Green Dots. A better flashcube for better color snapshots.

THE GREEN DOT. Every GE Bluecoat has four green dots, that act as automatic signal dots to keep track of the flashes for you. When a dot shows green, it means the bulb has not been used. Flash, it turns black. No more guessing. No more missing pictures. Now, you can easily see how many shots you have left.

THE BLUE COAT. Now the cube is blue all over, because we put the color in the cover instead of on each bulb. That's to give you better color snapshots than you ever got before.

Now, picture after picture, the color will be great.

THE BLACK DOT.

When a bulb is flashed, the green dot turns black, showing at a glance the bulb's been used.

No more goof-ups. No more accidentally trying to get five flashes out of a four-flash cube.

The new GE Bluecoat with the Green Dots. The first flashcube that makes it hard to goof up pictures.

as we see it

■ A few weeks ago we applauded the efforts of broadcasters to help white viewers understand more clearly the Negro's struggle for social and economic equality. Since then Xerox has launched—brilliantly—its CBS series Of Black America and NBC has begun its What Is Happening to America? series—both in prime time. ABC has scheduled its series Time for Americans for the Sunday audience and, of course, NET's fine Black Journal has been running for some time.

Thus the networks are bringing their enormous influence to bear on our most pressing national problem. But local stations have been doing their part too; and while the task of overcoming centuries of prejudice seems overwhelming, we are convinced that TV can help do it.

■ But it must be intelligent television. The other day we saw a local panel program in which five articulate business and professional men, three white, two black, met around a table to discuss—without a moderator—“How Wide Is the Communication Gap Between the Races?”

It took them a mere half hour to make the gap wider. Like the notorious PBL confrontation some months back, the “discussion” was completely undisciplined. Everyone talked, then shouted, then screamed at the same time. The result was chaos and more bitterness. Old prejudices, old propaganda, old untruths were not dispelled. They were merely aired again.

■ We came away from our set with no single piece of information or constructive thought gained from any of the five men.

We extend this plea to program directors throughout the country. By all means continue the discussions of our civil rights problems. But for heaven's sake, do them right. Plan the program and have a strong moderator present to keep order.

Night People, Arise!

All you have to lose is those public-service announcements at 3:41 A.M.

By Art Roumanis

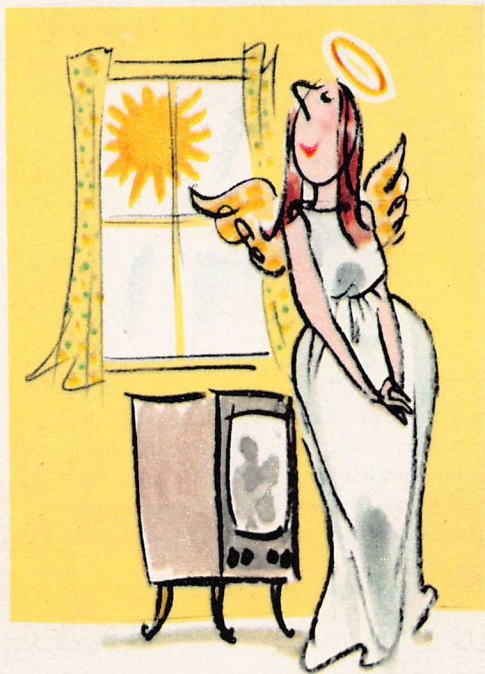

If you ever hang in there long enough after Johnny Carson to be urged to fight ambliopia, use your Zip Code, join the Peace Corps, fight air pollution, use your local public library, join the Marine Corps, be a Big Brother, send money to Radio Free Europe, be a social worker, send old eyeglasses to the needy, "Come to the UN," stop smoking, "Go Navy," and start practicing Planned Parenthood, then you might go along with a philosopher-bartender we know who charges there is a conspiracy within the television industry to get Night People to live up to their responsibilities.

Proof of a plot underfoot, he told us over a recent nightcap, is the bottom-heavy schedule of public-service announcements broadcast in the middle of the night and wee small hours, when most people (presumably solid, day types) are sound asleep.

This selective assault on the conscience of the Late Late Viewer hits a sensitive nerve in our friend, who sees such programming as a subliminal slur on his kind of people (except for three years in the Merchant Marine, he claims to have been a nightnik all his life).

He explained that public-service announcements are a benign form of propaganda meant to bring out the best in people. Singling out one breed of people to bring out the best in is to raise fundamental questions concerning group guilt: Is there a Responsibility Gap between people who keep odd hours and the regular, 9-to-5 crowd? Are Night People less likely to contribute to CARE, lock their car doors, believe in flu shots, or help Girl Scouts onward and upward? Do they need extra little lectures on brotherhood and dropoutism? Can they be trusted to use the litter basket, not cross in the middle of the block, and store poisonous pesticides out of the reach of children?

These are loaded questions, we agreed.

"Now, do I look like a guy who would poison children?" he wanted to know.

He said that sometimes it's hard to tell.

"Believe it or not, I like kids," he declared, waving his arms a bit. "Why should Jimmy Stewart zero in on me to explain how the monsoons did not come to India this year to water the wheat crops, and that unless I, or people like me, do something about it, little children may starve to death?" he asked, producing a small notebook. "That was at 12:51 A.M."

We mentioned that we know some Day People who may have been watching at that time.

"How about at 4:59 the next morning, when Helen Hayes asked the audience to send money to WAIF to help orphans find new homes?" he shot back.

We had to admit that probably the Day People were tuned out.

"Were they ever asked to become an Air Force nurse at 3:41 A.M., join the Air Force Reserve at 4:15 A.M., see their Navy recruiter at 4:35 A.M., or enlist in the Marines at 5:30 A.M.?"

He had us there.

"Family Planning at 4:10 in the morning!" he said, turning a page. "Were your Day buddies paying attention then? At least that one makes sense."

We gave up.

Not one to take a guilty conscience lying down, he then went on to tell how he had set the alarm and got out of bed like the rest of us to see what the TV spots would ask him to do if he were a Day Person—which turned out to be not too much in the way of social betterment. The few-and-far-between airing of public-service announcements during day and prime-viewing hours, he concluded, clearly points to a judgment behind the tube that Day People, being made of sterner stuff than Night People, need far less coaxing to do the right thing.

Responsibility Gap is a fact of life," he said, looking us straight in the eye.

We said that he still mixes a mean martini in our book.

"But there are all kinds of gaps in this world," he pointed out (as if we didn't know). Thanks to a latent anthropological streak in him, he said, he had uncovered a wealth of People Gaps based on the relative number of commercials programmed for each group. Since, on late television, commercials thin out proportionately as public-service announcements show up, a study of the 60-second sell, he maintained, provided him with valuable insights into the alleged good-guy character of Day People. Among the Day-Night People Gaps he mentioned were:

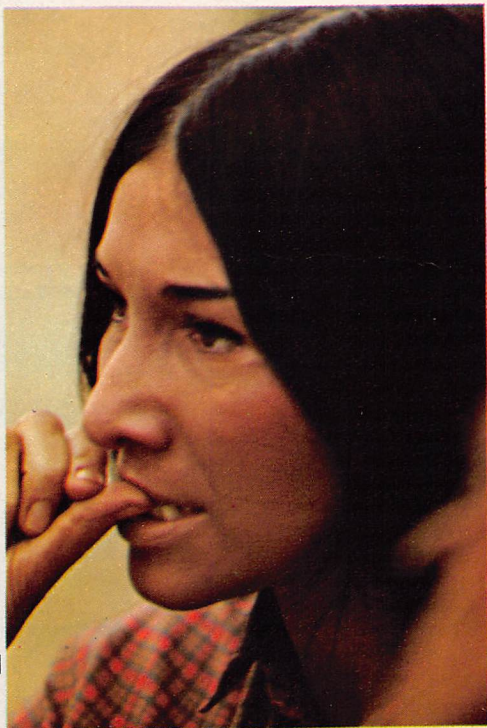

- The Bottoms-Up Gap (more beer commercials for Day People).
- The Dirty-Linen Gap (more detergent commercials for Day People).
- The Ulcer-Anxiety Gap (more anti-acid-product commercials for Day People).
- The Girth Gap (more low-cal soda commercials for Day People).
- The Rubber-Check Gap (more loan commercials for Day People).
- The Hippie Gap (more hair-product commercials for Day People).

But our philosophic friend's favorite gap (the one that makes his eyes light up) he came upon by analysis of what he calls the Dear-Fran Ratio (relative number of mouthwash commercials). By this yardstick, he found, Day People do not come up smelling so sweet.

"I may be on the short end of the Responsibility Gap," he said as he washed the last glass, "but never would I trade my gap for your Garlic Gap: Day People obviously have more bad breath."

THE INDIAN UPRISING of '68

How Buffy Sainte-Marie made certain that Indians would be employed in one television show, at least

by Laddie Marshack

Come fall, viewers will be witness to an authentic Hollywood revolution. For the first time in movie or TV history real Indians will be playing all the roles of Indians, not only as extras but in speaking parts as well, in an episode of The Virginian! In all, the performers will be 37 Indians from the Cree, Apache, Ute, Nez Perce, Hopi, Sauk and Fox, Mission, Creek, Oto, Kickapoo, Navajo, Mohawk, Oneida, Ponca, Sioux, Chumash, Winnebago, Shawnee, Yuma and Blackfoot tribes. They were costumed and made up to look like the horse Shoshone, the tribe in the episode. An attending anthropologist was on hand to make certain that artifacts, language and customs of the horse Shoshone were authentic. And folksinger Buffy Sainte-Marie, a Cree Indian maid from Saskatchewan, Canada, the guest star, was there to ensure that the Indian—any Indian—was not satirized, caricatured or in any way demeaned or falsified to suit script, producer or Hollywood cliché.

As a matter of fact, it is Buffy who led the revolution. Her conditions for guest-starring were succinct and irrevocable—"No Indians, no Buffy!"

It was then up to producer Joel Rogosin to locate 30 Indians to play extras and seven for speaking roles. His first sources were the Screen Extras Guild and the Screen Actors Guild. The supply of Indians was negligible, but there was an abundance of palefaces who could be mistaken for Indians.

Buffy remained adamant. "No Indians, no Buffy." She did not feel that she was being intransigent, but only → sticking to a principle that was important to her and her people. "There are thousands of Indians out of work. Some of these are actors. Now, an Indian actor is certainly not going to be encouraged to play the part of an average American. If an Indian can't play an Indian, he's had it, period. To get studios out of the easy habit of settling for non-Indian actors, I'm risking my chance to act, on the premise that at least one time they will go out and find all these Indians who are here but are always passed over in favor of the easier choice."

It took producer Rogosin one month to fill his Indian quota.

In her Virginian role Buffy is an Indian girl who has been sent to white schools and must adjust to her tribe on her return. In life, Buffy graduated from the University of Massachusetts, with a major in Oriental philosophy and a minor in acting. She refused roles that cast her as an Indian to keep from being categorized as an Indian actress, rather than just an actress. As a singer she would not sing any Indian songs until recently, for the same reason. In concert she sings songs in the Joan Baez genre, accompanying herself on the guitar. On stage, she has acted in Ionesco, Miller and Beckett plays.

During filming of The Virginian she was constantly on the phone with Rogosin, questioning every line in the script which conflicted with her determination that the Indian be portrayed honestly, not as a "Hollywood Indian."

"Ever since movie Westerns began, non-Indians have played Indians, and always badly," she says. "Therefore, the Indian has consistently faced a world that takes us for carnival clowns, subjects for Halloween parties—either 'ignorant savages' or 'proud, noble heroes.'"

Any other actress delaying production would have drawn some scornful criticism from her peers and the crew. Buffy drew respect. She is as charming as she is intense. On the final day of shooting, the Indians presented her with a gift, an Indian gift. It was a beaded belt.

Buffy summed up her triumph in a letter written to friends: "Thirty or 40 Indians have been given this chance to act, and it might change Hollywood's 'Indian' casting policy, and it just might change the whole unreal image by which the world knows us. Hollywood will never again be able to say 'There are no Indians to fill Indian roles.'" END

If the price of corn is right...

Mike North, impresario of the rodeo-fair-and-shopping-center circuit, divulges some trade secrets

By Joseph Finnigan

"I've got a feeling Albuquerque is Bonanza territory," the tall, swarthy, nattily dressed man in the Monte Factor camel's-hair jacket is barking into the phone. "Especially if the price of corn is right. . . . No, no, I mean real corn. . . . What's that got to do with it? Everything to do with it, that's all. Farmers might not go for the rodeo if they have to take the money out of the bank. . . . Yeah, yeah, that's right. . . . So OK, maybe I get you Lassie. . . ."

This is the kind of conversation that punctuates the typical working day of Mike North, a Hollywood agent who has grown rich off his specialty—booking well-known TV actors, particularly the Western variety, into the hinterlands.

It is he who books the Beverly Hillbillies, the Bonanza boys, Fess Parker, James Drury, Burt (Robin) Ward, the portable "Ponderosa Ranch-house" and anything else with half a Nielsen rating, into the hundreds of rodeos, fairs, circuses, charity telethons, apple festivals and even shopping-center openings this country seems to love.

Shopping-center openings?? Don't scoff. The ribbon-cutting ceremony can bring in as much as $2000 to a bona-fide TV personality these days. In Allentown, Pa., he doesn't even need to cut a ribbon. The management of Hess's department store has paid stars $5000 just for walking through the store.

"They wouldn't even advertise it," says North incredulously. "The star would fly into town, walk through the store, have lunch with management, pose for pictures with executives, walk back through the store and go home." The publicity just wouldn't quit, and neither would the sales.

As a man wise in the ways of matters like this, North is the leading practitioner of what has now grown into a $15,000,000 business, and gives him an income well into six figures. He is an ex-actor who began with two clients, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, and now administers this unusual and highly profitable empire from a modest office in Beverly Hills that looks more like the headquarters of a cattlemen's association.

Next to the copy of Variety on his desk lies the Rodeo Sports News, its headline blaring, "New Records Set at Houston Rodeo." The telephone rings constantly (monthly bills up to $1000) as promoters from Phoenix to Toronto deal with Mike for his stars.

In an average year North travels more than 150,000 miles to watch Doug McClure break in his act at the Lubbock, Texas, rodeo; to iron out the business details for Fess Parker's Fort Smith, Ark., performance; to see to it that lights, stage and microphones will be perfect when Gunsmoke's Ken Curtis plays Festus at Louisiana's State Fair in Shreveport.

When you consider that the busy season is from July to September, and North is likely to have as many as five or six units on the road at one time—Irene Ryan, Donna Douglas and Max Baer at the Wisconsin State Fair; Meredith MacRae at the Louisiana Peach Festival; Leonard Nimoy at the Hattiesburg, Miss., Beauty Pageant; Dale Robertson at the Kentucky State Fair; Burt Ward at the Damascus Shrine Circus in Rochester, N.Y., not to mention random appearances by James Drury, Sally Field, Jonathan Harris, June Lockhart, Pat Boone and Buddy Ebsen—you are talking about one big Mike North headache.

Still the rewards are worth it. It's a rich circuit. There are hundreds of rodeos from January to November. "A weekend salary is usually not less than $5000," North says. "The average runs between $8000 and $15,000. A couple of years ago, Lorne Greene and Dan Blocker made $50,000 for four days. To show you how that's gone up, four years before that, they got $5500 for four days' work, out of which they had to pay musicians about $1200. Lorne, Dan and Mike Landon always earned $150,000 a year this way." All of which brings up a paradox. Why would the Bonanza boys, each of whom makes about $500,000 a year from the series, want to battle the crowds, eat the dust and risk getting kicked by a horse at a rodeo, especially when much of the take goes back to Uncle Sam anyway? About all they get to take back home is the dust. Landon says he operates on the theory that the more you make, the more you keep, and has a corps of tax experts to implement this philosophy. Also there is the ham in him to be contended with. "I have a lot of fun when I perform," he says.

Even so, the Bonanza boys aren't going out as much as previously. Lorne has a baby daughter now and he's reluctant to travel. Dan Blocker also has become a stay-at-home. "Some stars just don't want to go out any more," North says. "They can't stand the crowds, the pushing, the shoving."

Supermarkets and stores have the advantage of being, in most cases, closer to home. So stars are likely to be amenable. And how it pays off! "This whole thing started back in the days of Tom Mix and Buck Jones," explains North. "Then Gene Autry and Roy Rogers came along. Then along came TV. Its stars were a natural, especially if they had an act. Hopalong Cassidy went, then the Cisco Kid, later Hugh O'Brian and Jim Arness. I never represented Jim but I put together Doc, Kitty and Chester in 1958. We billed them as "The Gun- → smoke Trio' and they were tremendous, broke records."

Some rodeo cowboys resent the high salary paid to TV cowboys. A rugged bronc buster rides half-mad bulls, wrestles reluctant steers, gets his legs and arms busted, and still doesn't win prize money anywhere near the $5000 a Hollywood cowboy might make. But a rodeo or fair date does have occupational hardships, most involving a grinding schedule of work and recalcitrant horses who embarrass video cowboys. An actor in a hit series is before the cameras five days a week. On Friday evening he'll leave for the p.a., fly all night, change planes to arrive in some small rodeo town. There he's met by a host of eager-beaver city officials, beauty queens, a band, members of the committee, reporters and TV newsmen, all anxious to shake his hand and pose for pictures with a celebrity. Everybody in town knows everything he does, giving everybody from the motel maid to the mayor something to gossip about. North wants the gossip to be good. "I don't have any drunks but I do have one wild man," he says. "I gotta watch him."

Mike can control the stars, but the horses are something else. "A Western star is in a terrible spot," he explains. "It's mandatory that he ride a horse. Some ride well but even the finest horseman in the world wouldn't ride a strange horse into a dark arena. These stars do." And terrible things can happen. Lorne Greene and Dan Blocker fell victim to a pair of horses in Beaumont, Texas. When questioned about it, Lorne says, "We asked if they were good horses. We were told, 'Yes, my 5-year-old daughter rides that horse.' They didn't tell us we would ride out into the arena in the dark and suddenly be hit with a spotlight. Well, when that spotlight went on, those horses reared up and fell over on their backs. We scrambled out from under and just barely did do our act."

A few years ago, it wouldn't have been necessary even to have an act. All you had to do was show up, sign a few autographs, pick up your money and go home. "The fans were glad to see anybody that they saw every week on TV," North says.

But still, a star must be seen every week if he's going to command the big rodeo money. Once a show goes off the air, interest in its star drops off at least 50 percent.

On the other side of the coin, there's Rowan and Martin, who belong to that large fraternity of occasional fair-goers. They're being paid approximately $25,000 to do two shows in one day at the Indiana State Fair this month. "That's more than they could have made in an entire week last year," North says.

One of the most interesting aspects of North's operation is what he calls his "Bible Belt Rating Service," which indicates the entertainment tastes of the grass roots, those vast areas in between the big cities.

It is there, he says, that the meat and potatoes of a TV series' strength is apparent. Generally speaking, his calculations agree with Nielsen's, but a lot of high-power talent doesn't go out on the rodeo circuit at all. Of one of these, Lucy Ball, Mike says, "She could write her own ticket."

All of them could pack any arena in the rodeo circuit, but it's not likely they could make the impact that big Clint (Cheyenne) Walker did some years back in Huntington, W. Va. As Clint galloped his horse into the dark arena, the music blared and the spotlight went on, stopping the horse dead in his tracks. Clint kept on going, right over the horse's head. He picked himself up, brushed himself off, and said into the microphone, "I guess this horse has seen my act."

The audience loved it.

Cavett Hot but His Ratings Not

ABC officialdom is in a quandary over Dick Cavett's morning show. It has been critically well received and the networkers are pleased with Cavett's performance, feeling he's a fresh, bright personality with high promise. The trouble is: the Tonight-type show he is doing just can't seem to round up a big enough following in the morning to give it a passing grade in the ratings. Cavett's 26-week contract is up for renewal. ABC's thinking at the moment, it's believed, is to give the show another 13-week whirl. Even if the program has to be scuttled, the network undoubtedly will try to keep Cavett working.

As if the networks won't have spent enough time and money before they finish covering both the GOP and Democratic Conventions, word got around that George Wallace might spring a third-party conclave in September and demand equal attention from TV. "Yes," a high-ranking network executive admitted when queried. "We've been alerted." What would the networks do in such an event? He shuddered. "Run to our legal departments," he guessed, "and ask them how to get us off the hook."

A congressional vote on suspending the equal-time rule has been put off until Sept. 11, heightening doubts there will be Presidential debates unless both nominees are eager for them. If it's a Nixon-Humphrey race, speculation goes, one or both will find excuses to shun confrontations.

PBL, the Ford Foundation-financed effort to show how good Public TV can be, probably will return to the air next November as a slightly cut-down (from two hours to 90 minutes) week-night program devoted three out of five times to a single theme, according to PBL boss Av Westin. Ironically, the "magazine" format pursued with varying success by PBL will be adopted during the coming season by two of the big commercial networks—CBS for its 60 minutes beginning in September, and NBC for its First Tuesday starting in January. NBC news president Reuven Frank envisions his monthly two-hour pot-pourri as a "TV equivalent of the old Collier's magazine in its heyday."

Can TV, a proven piper, play something more than insipid baby sitter to the very small fry? CBS and Bobby Keeshan, roly-poly genius of the 13-year-old Captain Kangaroo series, say they mean to find out. In October, Keeshan, with the guidance of New York City's prestigious Bank Street College of Education, will begin devoting 10 or so minutes a morning to a conscious effort to prep preschoolers (aged 3 to 5) for formal schooling. Sample idea: To help 8 to 10 million Kangaroo watchers discover their identity, they'll be invited to peer into the mirror and marvel at their "uniqueness." Disadvantaged tots, it's hoped, especially will be benefited by such devices. "It's frankly experimental," Keeshan confesses.

THE GOOD AND THE BAD

"American Profile: Home Country USA" was the first hopeful thing I'd seen in weeks of public self-flagellation. Then your article by Edith Efron ["The Program That Explored Real America," July 20], confirming that thousands of Americans reacted as I did to a public declaration that our country still has something good about it, came like a breath of fresh air. You are so right about the harm all this obsessive self-criticism is doing. If psychologists are right about individuals needing to like themselves before they can love others, then must not a nation be able to respect and like itself before it can trust and respect other nations? How can we do this if fed scene after scene of riot, racial hate and student demonstrations, which, after all, exist in so many other countries? I strongly believe that these scenes spawn more of the same by inflaming impressionable individuals to go and do likewise.

Louise McCormick
Cloverdale, Cal.

I feel good again! America is a great country and the good, as well as the bad, should be shown.

Joyce McLaughlin

Charming as those rural "rugged individualists" are, they can hate as violently as any city residents.

Diane Hodgman
Danbury, Conn.

I'll have to take Edith Efron's word for it that the show was magnificent. Our local NBC station saw fit not to carry such dull junk! Instead, we were treated to a badly butchered 15-year-old grade-B movie with uncountable commercials.

Peter Martinson
Standish, Mich.

CORRECTION

As much as I liked the cover portrait of my family, my wife Toni and two of our tigers ["Zoo U.," June 22], I am not the "head animal trainer" at Africa, U.S.A. I hire him—as a partner with Ivan Tors in what we believe to be one of the rare animal compounds in the world. Ron Adams, the man identified as me in your story, is one of the animal trainers, but the obstacle course was designed by me after years of working with the animals and, I think, learning the limitless things they can be taught.

THE BRIGHT BRITISH

With the exception of a few, the best shows now coming to us seem to be not of U.S. making. Secret Agent, The Avengers, The Saint, The Prisoner and especially The Champions are (or were) my "must see" programs. Come on! Let's get with it, U.S. TV!

Lisa Blake
Stanton, Mich.

The Prisoner is the best thing that's happened to television in a long time. It is sophisticated, thoughtful, unique. When is it being canceled?

McHALE'S NAVY JOINS THE AIR FORCE
(NBC), Saturday

A CASE OF LIBEL—drama special (ABC), Sunday

SARATOGA TRUNK (NBC) Tuesday

A NEW KIND OF LOVE (ABC) Wednesday

In some areas network movies may not be seen on the days indicated.

You might think that a network-movie week, even a rerun one, that boasted such stellar attractions as Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward, let alone Ingrid Bergman and Gary Cooper, couldn't be all bad.

The highlight of the week, in fact, is the nonmovie "Movie Night Special" telecast of the television adaptation of Henry Denker's Broadway stage dramatization of "A Case of Libel," taken from attorney Louis Nizer's autobiographical "My Life in Court." A courtroom drama of an ex-war-correspondent's libel suit against a vicious newspaper columnist, who described him as immoral, cowardly and pro-Communist, the teleplay achieves brilliant tension through some fine performances by excellent actors. These include Van Heflin as counsel for the correspondent, Lloyd Bridges as the correspondent, Jose Ferrer as the columnist, and E. G. Marshall as his attorney.

On the movie-movie front, however, the stars do not fare well. Paul Newman and Miss Woodward and even Thelma Ritter, George Tobias, Robert Clary and Maurice Chevalier in a guest spot—are trapped in a repulsive bit of trivia labeled "A New Kind of Love." Trapped and helpless, it's one of those career girl vs. newspaperman set-in-Paris sex comedies wherein Miss Woodward is the business girl who spends half the movie looking like a boy (even, we are tastefully shown, to the consternation of a streetwalker) and the other half, thanks to haute couture, looking like a boy dressed up as a girl. Mr. Newman looks impassive—no easy task in the light of dialog and action.

Miss Bergman and Mr. Cooper aren't in much better circumstances except that the surroundings are pure Civil War posh and therefore pretty in "Saratoga Trunk," about as empty-headed a piece of romantic fiction as Edna Ferber ever fabricated. Miss Bergman, despite all her Brunette makeup and fey ways, is really too good to be true as the Creole adventuress out to get even with high society; and Mr. Cooper, a yup-man underneath it all, is really too good-guy to be the roguish con man who wins her heart. The film is 25 years old and has not improved with age.

Not, mind you, that vintage is a gauge. "McHale's Navy Joins the Air Force" was made three years ago as an extra bonus for the more devout fans of the television series. Such stalwarts thereof as Joe Flynn and Tim Conway are on hand to show their expertise in mugging their way through a script that calls for bumbling mistaken-identity shenanigans and the sinking of a Japanese fleet. The Navy could make out a case of libel. Ernest Borgnine just had the good sense to sit this one out.

What CBS will offer its network-movie watchers is unknown at this writing. It wouldn't be hard to come up with the winning entries, however.

What has the 12-year-old
Guns smoke done to its stars?
Matt, Kitty and Doc give some provocative answers
next week in TV GUIDE.

Ever have one of those vacation trips where you wind up in the wrong town in the middle of the night?

And then have to spend an hour trying to find a motel?

And then have to pay through the nose for it?

Welcome to the club.

The official password is Help. And that covers a lot more than just sending help when your car conks out.

Say you're planning a trip. We can give you more useful help than your brother-in-law and sixteen other amateur experts put together.

We'll lay out the entire route for you. We'll show you how to avoid that six-hour detour. We'll show you how to find the turn-offs and off-ramps that aren't on regular maps. We'll show you how to steer clear of the tourist traps and see the sights that most tourists don't.

Ever get stuck in one of those towns where the only bright lights are the No Vacancy signs? We'll make your motel reservations and we'll guarantee them. We'll give you a tour book listing the motels that we have personally checked and double checked. (Only 1 out of 7 can pass muster.) We'll show you exactly what each place has to offer, and exactly what they charge. And we'll give you money-back protection against overcharges.

We'll also give you emergency road service, any time of the day or night. And we'll make available the best car insurance in the business.

All that, and that's just the beginning. How can we afford it? We're a nonprofit organization. One of 238 affiliated AAA clubs throughout the United States and Canada, serving more than 11 million members. Give us a call, or drop by our office. It takes about 12 minutes to sign up.

Eagles vs. Lions

SPECIAL COLOR The Philadelphia Eagles meet the Detroit Lions in a pre-season game in Mexico City. Don Criqui and Frank Gifford report this first American pro-football game to be played outside the U.S. (Live)

The Eagles gave up 409 points last season—second highest in the NFL. Hoping to improve on their 6-7-1 record, they drafted for defense. Defensive end Tim Rossovich (80) and linebacker Adrian Young (35) are bright rookie prospects; former Colt defensive back Alvin Haymond (30) should help the weak secondary.

The strong Eagle offense is led by quarterback Norm Snead (16), the fifth-ranked NFL passer, and flanker Ben Hawkins (18), who led the league with 1265 yards on 59 receptions.

The passing attack will be even tougher if ends Gary Ballman (85) and Mike Ditka (98), injured last season, return to full playing capacity. Tom Woodeshick (37) and Izzy Lang (29) lead the ground game.

The Lion rebuilding program began to pay dividends last season: The club rose to 5-7-2; Rookie of the Year honors went to running back Mel Farr (24) and defensive back Lem Barney (20). This season the club is counting heavily on ex-Ram QB Bill Munson (19)—who found himself in the hospital soon after training camp opened. Backing him up: Karl Sweetan (14) and rookie Greg Landry (11).

Joining Barney on defense is Alex "Tippy Toes" Karras (71), perennial all-pro tackle.

A CASE OF LIBEL

SPECIAL COLOR An all-star cast performs in this TV adaptation of Broadway's taut courtroom drama.

"My Life in Court," Louis Nizer's best-selling autobiography, provided the basis for the play, which focuses on a single case: a former war correspondent's fight to clear his name.

Key figures . . . Dennis Corcoran (Lloyd Bridges) has been ridiculed in print by columnist Boyd Bendix, who attacked him as "a drunken, yellow-bellied degenerate . . . a phony war correspondent."

Corcoran's attorney, Robert Sloane (Van Heflin, re-creating his Broadway role): "If Bendix is allowed to silence Corcoran today, tomorrow it's somebody else. And the day after, the whole country."

Boyd Bendix (Jose Ferrer). Once a good friend of Corcoran, he has since become a self-righteous defender of the country's morals and a self-appointed watchdog against Communism.

Paul Cleary (E. G. Marshall) is counsel to Bendix and his powerful news syndicate.

Henry Denker, author of the 1963 stage play, did the TV adaptation. Pulitzer Prize playwright Marc Connelly makes a rare acting appearance as the judge. Director: Charles Jarrott.

Supporting cast . . . Anita Corcoran: Angie Dickinson. Colonel Douglas: Anthony Quayle. Alston: George Grizzard. Claire: Rosemary Murphy. David: Christopher Wines. Coles: John Beal. (Rerun; two hours)

16 things I learned from my wife

...since she started reading
The National Observer!

"Barbara is a model housewife. But she's the last person I would expect to brief me about what is going on in the world. So you can imagine my surprise when Barbara began talking about such news as:

1. How polar bear hunting seems to be threatening relations between the U.S. and Russia.
2. Why the Federal Reserve Board may deliberately create a recession to fight inflation.
3. Why many doctors are warning women against wearing a certain type of earring.
4. How a group of physicians is making use of $1,000,000 worth of beer-brewing equipment to fight Leukemia.
5. How families save hundreds of dollars on air fares by knowing the airline "ratelanguage".
6. Why the old science fiction idea of freezing people for cold storage may come true a lot sooner than you think.
7. Why a psychologist says the name you give your child may be the key to his behavior.
8. Why the hobo ranks have declined in America.
9. Why reckless drivers in one state may be able to go scot-free because of a new law against ticket-fixing.
10. Why analysts believe oceanography stocks are the next big glamour investment.
11. Why a countyful of families can scoff at statistics designating them poverty stricken.
12. Why certain large cities may soon be "off limits" to private aircraft.
13. How periodical eye examinations may help many people avoid heart attacks.
14. How astronauts learn to find their way in outer space.
15. Why one city's police department is using video-tape to record criminal confessions.
16. How a new breed of dog is being "perfected" in an Oregon laboratory.

"Where did Barbara get all of this information? Certainly not from daytime television or the local paper. No — a short while

16 things I learned from my wife

...since she started reading
The National Observer!

ago, on the advice of a friend, she took out a subscription to The National Observer, the national weekly newspaper. I could see the change in her almost immediately, and when I started reading The National Observer, too, I knew why. It really explains the news. Each story is not just a collection of facts, but a fascinating, thorough report that puts all the pieces together.

"Since The Observer presents national and world news without scare headlines and sensationalism, we are glad to see the children pick it up. Now we're all discussing the news in our house."

Today, thousands of families all over the country are enriching their lives and adding to their reading pleasure through The National Observer.

The National Observer is published by Dow Jones & Company, the same world-wide news-gathering organization that publishes The Wall Street Journal. The Observer has won top awards for five successive years for distinguished reporting.

Because The National Observer is printed on high-speed newspaper presses in its four modern printing plants across the country—and because newspapers can be “made up” faster than magazines—last minute stories can be included only hours before The Observer comes off the press.

You get more news—and you get more out of it. In its full-size newspaper format (printed on our own special crisp, white newsprint) you often get more reading material than in other news weeklies — not just one major “cover story,” but five or six. Inside pages are important news pages, too — there’s no “letdown.” More than 50 excellent pictures and illustrations open windows not only on the people, places and events in the headlines, but also on such colorful sidelights as the amusing spectacle of an elephant giving his autograph.

Many Enjoyable Special Features

Every week, too, The Observer brings you more than a dozen special features that add to your enjoyment or broaden your knowledge in important areas. "This Week in Washington," for example, can be read in a matter of minutes, yet it brings you up to date on significant happenings in Congress, the White House, Government agencies, the courts and politics. Similarly, "How's Business?" fills you in quickly on important trends in business and industry, the performance of the stock market, and company and executive highlights.

For Bridge enthusiasts, there's "Better Bridge"; for crossword fans, a really challenging brain-tickler every week exclusively for Observer readers; for recipe collectors, a gem or two almost every week in "Food for Thought." And for both you and your youngsters, there's a weekly news quiz, plus "Current Events Classroom," a column which brings you news background on topics such as the mystery of certain Unidentified Flying Objects for which the U.S. Air Force has no explanation or on how the Federal Reserve Board exercises its power and protects itself from Administration control. On the lighter side, "Reflections" explores random aspects of life: the "good old days" when a pocket watch was a major status symbol . . . what it's like to be a female "handyman".

CLOSE-UP OF BLACK AMERICA
10:00 5 8 10 12

SPECIAL COLOR The poem at the base of the Statue of Liberty asks other nations to send their "huddled masses yearning to breathe free." This hour focuses on unwilling immigrants—slaves.

Graphics and writings by slaves re-create the atmosphere of life in bondage; history speaks of slaves in revolt in a land they did not want. At least 250 rebellions were recorded; the most famous is Nat Turner's Southampton (Va.) Insurrection of 1831. Denmark Vesey (c. 1767-1822) and 9000 followers planned to take over the city of Charleston, but the revolt was betrayed.

Producer Peter Davis examines the master-slave relationships that persist in more subtle forms today, and examines the parallels between black rebellion past and present. Newsman George Foster explores the attitudes of black activists and the descendants of plantation owners. (60 min.)

Bickering over who is upstaging whom has come into the life of Gentle Ben

by Ted Crail

Walk onto the set of Gentle Ben and you're walking into the other side of Wonderland, a place where a bear has a passion for stealing cigarettes from the mouth of a midget. The midget, 60 years old, is passionately happy to be the stand-in for an 8-year-old boy, Clint Howard. Clint loves the bear the way the bear loves cigarettes (he eats them). The head of the studio, Ivan Tors, is so enamored of his own animal kingdom that when he runs into this bear, he kisses him.

But there is a flaw in Wonderland—as usual. Monty Cox, the bear's chief trainer, thinks the show is constantly in danger of losing sight of the one thing that's really important: Gentle Ben is a series about a bear. Is there going to be enough bear or isn't there? And just how much bear is there going to be?

Why should any actor ever carry on as though poor Ben were somehow getting away with something?

"The boy's upstaging' me, the bear's upstaging' me, the raccoon's upstaging' me—that's all I hear around here," says Monty disgustedly. "It's hard on Ben. The humans are working with their egos and the bear is not."

Dennis Weaver, as cool and country-smart as the game warden he plays on screen, is amused by Monty's notion that the humans are in danger of stealing the series from the bear. "I think the bear's winning," he says drolly. He argues, contentedly enough, that the bear, by the very nature of things—is the star of the show and can't help it—that the humans just have to accept that. "You don't argue with a bear," he says.

Still, impatient directors, facing a → three-and-a-half-day shooting schedule for each segment of the show, find it easier to by-pass one of Ben's scenes than to wait for him to get the idea. Once when a script called for him to reject his food, they filled him up with 12 loaves of bread, 10 apples, 10 oranges, 10 carrots and a gallon of milk—hoping for a shot where he'd push his meal away. "But every time we started to shoot," admits Monty, "he'd eat again. So we put cold cream on the food, and Chanel No. 5—everything on the set labeled nontoxic. Just to discourage him. But he still ate it. He smelled good for quite a while."

Many of the men out on the set feel that the real struggle here is not between actor-egos and bear-egos but a struggle with the oncoming heat and a bear who gets terribly, terribly sleepy when the long, hot summer finally hits. As the bear rambles slightly wrong for the eighth time in a row, a crewman near the camera grumbles, "We'll get this shot by 6 o'clock if it takes till midnight."

In Wonderland, terrible boredom and great excitement alternate. Everybody fights boredom in his own way. Dennis Weaver and Clint's daddy, Rance Howard, an actor-writer, seem to be fighting it best. They're having a competition in pratfalls from jeep and airboat. Dennis fairly yowls with pleasure after bouncing his airboat 4 feet off the water from a hidden log he hadn't seen. Dennis does his own roughriding and claims, "If the script calls for hot roddin', I can hot rod with the best of 'em."

Although he was trained at the Actors Studio, co-starring with a bear doesn't seem to bother him. He laughs about the day when a director, fresh in from Hollywood, spilled out of the airboat into a Florida swamp on his first day of filming.

It can get rougher in Florida than that and, whatever happens, Dennis sort of leans into it. When the edge of a hurricane blew through Miami over a year ago, he thought it was just the right time to get home movies of his wife, Gerry. Gerry stood up on a wall near the ocean and, as a great sheet of white foam passed over her, he remembers looking through the camera-sight, thinking, "That'll be the funniest thing—when the foam disappears and she's still standing there."

When the foam disappeared, she wasn't still standing there. Waves swept her down into jagged rock. She had to fly West again, temporarily ensconced in a wheel chair, nursing her injuries. Thus, it might seem to Dennis's wife that there's more action than anybody could stand, down in the heat and storm of subtropical Florida where they're filming Gentle Ben. But that's illusion, pure illusion. Hurricanes are rare—it was the last Dennis saw of one. Even the airboat adventures and the pratfalls are interspersed with long, tired stage waits. Ben gets sleepier, and the humans fear his sleepiness.

Day floats into day with Ben posing in a Cossack cap; and Murray Wood, Clint's midget stand-in, clucking, "If the bear steps on your foot, you don't move till he decides to get off."

Who suffers most from the tedium? Why, poor Ben himself. People smoking cigarets have learned to stay out of his way, though he can swoosh one from a smoker's mouth with the delicacy of a bear in the woods plucking a trout from a mountain stream. Cigarets are a poor substitute for trout anyway, and Ben gets so downright blue at times that Monty, the trainer, goes into his special emergency procedures for lifting Ben out of his all-engulfing boredom.

When Ben gets blue, Monty takes him out for a nice meal, a nice shower and a sleep in the suburbs. The Cox apartment is located a few miles from Ivan Tors' Miami studios, and the neighbors stare a bit sullenly from their windows when Monty arrives home with an 8-foot, 650-pound bear as his houseguest.

"Ben's a teen-ager, you know," says Monty. "Seven years old—bears usually live to about 20. He's the most intelligent animal I've ever worked with, but if he doesn't get affection, he comes to a slitherin' halt. I hop in the shower and Ben hops in beside me. He'll get all wet and soapy and then crawl in bed with me. If he'd sleep on his own side, it'd be OK."

Monty's wife has always been on the West Coast when this unusual bit of houseguesting was taking place on the lower East Coast. The degree of separation is probably about right. If you're going to bring an affectionate bear home to share the bedroom, it's a good idea to have at least a continent's distance between yourself and your wife.

Gentle Ben is a black bear who was named Bruno originally and he gets some help running (Bruno hates to run) from a stand-in called Buck. With Monty or Clint, he's truly as gentle as a gentle lamb, but outsiders still think that you never can know when the bear will break bad.

To Monty, that fear seems so absolutely crazy that he gives a bitter laugh. Demonstrations were staged between Clint and the bear to satisfy reporters after U.S. newspapers played up a hair-raising tragedy last summer. Marauding grizzlies had struck campers in the wilds of Montana and a girl victim, dying as she was dragged off by a bear, had given that terrible outcry, "I'm dead!"

Monty claims that danger, actual danger, is the last thing you'd find around the set of Gentle Ben. By his own standards it's true. Slender and sensitive, with a build like James Dean's, Monty is only 27 years old but a record-breaking sky-diver and a black-belt karate man. He speedily advanced to a post as head trainer—partly because he had perfected a trick which proved how far he was willing to trust animals and how much he could get away with. "They'd put five lions, two tigers, two leopards, two jaguars in an arena," he says, "and I'd go in and run around and get all the animals chasing me. It was a demonstration for visiting nobility—an attack scene. I'd leap straight up and all 11 cats would go up after me and pull me down." He misses the cats and the excitement, but he was shifted to Gentle Ben from Daktari because bears are special, hard to read—they had to have somebody who could tell what Ben was thinking.

After the cats, working with the bear is just a cakewalk. There are no attack scenes at Gentle Ben. Not unless you want to count certain shadowy mutterings against pretty Beth Brickell, who plays the mother in the series. Beth sees the show as a springboard to stardom and tries to use it that way. She has hired her own press agent, and it made some of them sore. But Beth is the only woman on the show, so perhaps it's only natural the men should feel outnumbered by her. The antagonism, in any case, probably has something to do with the heat and the boredom.

As they fold up another day, Dennis Weaver says, "I just hope we can get through 26 shows without collapsing—under heat, and reflectors, with full wardrobe. But Ben has the worst of it. Ben's got that fur coat on."

Chances are Ben would never make it except for that one happy thing—when he's totally on edge from trying to live up to what humans expect of him, there's this apartment in the suburbs he can escape to. And it's air-conditioned! What other bear in Florida has that?

The Last Girl in Larchmont to Get Married

Joan Rivers is always bemoaning her wretched existence . . . but it comes out funny and pays well

by Judith Jobin

Not long ago a uniformed nursemaid strode into the New York office of The Tonight Show carrying a very young, dark-haired baby. With no word of explanation or hint of purpose, and with many of the Tonight staffers looking on in surprise, she walked straight into Johnny Carson's office, handed the baby to the startled star and walked straight out again.

The baby's name was Melissa Rosenberg; a note pinned to her blanket explained that she was a gift from her parents, comedienne Joan Rivers and producer Edgar Rosenberg, to thank Johnny for his appearance on the pilot film of Joan's talk show.

The Carson staffer who told that story was still laughing and shaking his head at the sense of humor—slightly tinged with madness—of Joan Rivers, some of whose admirers claim she is slightly tinged with madness.

Joan herself conjectures, not altogether happily: "If I lived in a small town somewhere, like in Vermont, I'd be known as 'that crazy Mrs. Rosenberg'—they'd say 'what a weirdo she is!' I guess people think I'm really wacked out sometimes."

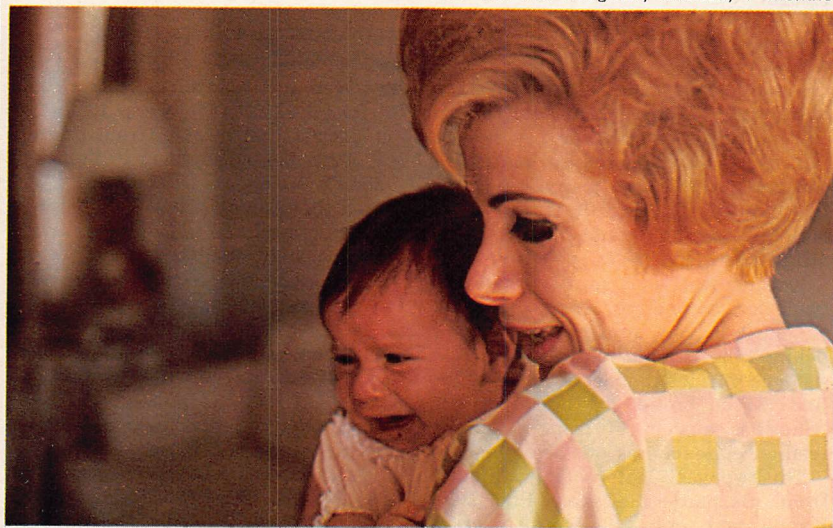

The fact is she lives in New York City and is one of the most sought-after comedienne around. For the past three years she's been popping up all over television. And no one is calling her a weirdo; they are calling her: ". . . definitely one of the greatest comedienne around today; she is unique—there is a great quality of warmth in her work." (Ed Sullivan); ". . . a major talent. She has a very funny mind, terrific ability as a writer and great empathy with her audience." (Johnny Carson).

It was on Carson's show back in 1965 that she made her first television appearance. Carson predicted, "You're going to be a big star." Next day critical raves and offers poured in.

Even before that fateful Carson debut she had managed to garner some fairly respectable, if meager, credits. She'd done stints at Mr. Kelly's in Chicago, the Bon Soir in New York, the hungry i in San Francisco, and had been part of the prestigious Second City improvisational company. In addition, she had written material for Phyllis Diller and Zsa Zsa Gabor, and once dreamed up stunts for the now defunct Candid Camera show.

One suspects that the Candid Camera job must have come with some ease to Joan, whose own life seems to have unfolded with the same quality of dream-like insanity that characterized that show—a quality she mines to the utmost in her comedy.

"When I started—listen to this! . . . I had an agent, he had the little business card and everything, you know—two little masks on it: They were both tragedy." She has a whole store of hair-raising anecdotes about her earnestly delivered first fruits (rotten all), including early forays in to unreciprocated Borscht Belt clubs and strip joints (at one place, "everything had to be translated into Yiddish"; another time, her act was ended abruptly when a club manager bellowed over the loud-speaker, "Get her off!").

Thus her non-career bumbled on for a good many years: By day she was a temporary office worker and agent-haunter; by night a gratis performer in dingy clubs. Recalling those years a close friend, scriptwriter Treva Silverman, commented: "She was always running—going to agents, typing, going to these schlock clubs at night. She was really crazy, desperate." And, citing Joan's intriguing duality, she added: "It's funny. She's vulnerable, but she doesn't shatter."

It is the vulnerability that is most immediately apparent. She talks at length about being a fat child ("I looked like Wimpy with a hairbow") and about the painful scars it left. She talks about her excruciating shyness ("At parties I hide myself—it's very difficult to just let go"), her inability to be as "forceful" as she should be and her fear of getting hurt if she gets too close to somebody, her admiration for kind people.

Not surprisingly, and despite the insouciance of her delivery, much of her comedy revolves around the insecurities, and funny lines have a way of trailing off mournfully. Joan acknowledges that explicitly—and with no trace of a smile: "If you can laugh at anything, it helps you get through life. Comedy is relief. Life is very sad and tough. That's what my act is about. And it's therapy for me."

Put her on stage and she is apt to reel off a long, sad monolog, replete with self-mockery ("I stepped out of the shower the other day and my husband called me 'fat fat the water rat'"), and poor-me-ism.

Or she'll start a routine on a near maudlin note—"I was the last girl in Larchmont to get married"—before going after her target, in this case, the mother who goes through the New York Times society pages putting black marks across the pictures and saying, "See! Even attractive girls get married." She ends with a flurry of jibes that clearly put Joan-the-victimimized on top.

That's the other side of her comic schizophrenic persona. As she puts it: "I'm the victim who strikes back."

Her other targets include: middle-class suburban pretensions—"I come from an upper-middle-class family. My mother took the test in → Reader's Digest and that's what we were"; and mean, petty people. Meanness and ignorance are perhaps the only qualities Joan can't tolerate. In one supermarket routine, a woman calls the manager because Joan—the hapless has one too many items for the express line. "She is a typical middle-class housewife," Joan says. "High heels and socks, you know..."

Insecurities are pretty standard stuff for comedians. What isn't so standard is the unexpected strength behind the fragile exterior—an insistence on independence and a refusal to be bullied by her neuroses. "She has a vein of iron, a terrific resilience," exclaims one friend.

The two years after her graduation from Barnard—she was Phi Beta Kappa and only 19—were a crisis period that clarified and cemented that strength. Although she had "always wanted to be in show business," she yielded to violent parental opposition, social pressure and nagging self-doubts. She embarked on a highly successful but personally unrewarding career as a fashion co-ordinator, and a disastrous six-month marriage. That ended her unhappy attempts to do what was expected of her. "Listen—I know how they feel when they get out of the death house! I'm not kidding. It was horrible. But that marriage gave me courage to go into show business."

The episode was, in fact, a full-fledged identity crisis. And what emerged when it was over was a full-fledged idealist. "You have to accept all responsibility for your own actions," she says, hinting at her inner struggle. "You do a positive thing. I left home. If I were a failure, I would have no one to blame but me."

She is very much her own woman, and no matter how painful the consequences, never deviates from her hard-learned principles. A few years ago she walked out on a critically "successful," money-making act called

"Jim, Jake and Joan." "Look," she says, wincing unhappily. "That act was contrived and I was frustrated. When I left, I had no money, no agent, no manager. I had to start from scratch. But there was no joy ever in that act."

Joan's struggles haven't fully resolved themselves: There is a residue of anxiety and she is still easily overwrought, high-strung, and subject to unreasonable outbursts of anger. "I'm too flighty," she says. But compared to earlier days of depression and hypertension, she is the picture of calm and self-confidence, say friends.

Joan, managing her hectic life from the pleasantly cluttered, work-filled study of her Park Avenue apartment, does it with the élan of a skillful juggler. In addition to nightly performances at the Upstairs at the Downstairs, a New York night club, she's got many TV dates. Other projects are the new talk show, a screenplay and a book. She's also got a talented finger in all of husband Edgar's film projects. He is a producer—credits include an award-winning series on the UN plus a long list of television shows—who hired Joan in 1965 to write a script for him; a few weeks later, to the continuing delight of both, they were married. And this past Jan. 20 Melissa Frida Rosenberg wailed her way into the world. Things, as they say, are looking up—way way up. Joan puts it this way:

On success: "With all the hysteria and all the aggravation, I wouldn't change with anyone. A lot of the kids in this business are too neurotic, but I'm enjoying every minute of it."

On self-respect: "I'm doing exactly what I want to do. I haven't compromised myself. You know that word in the business—selling out? I'm still talking about what I want to talk about, and getting paid for it."

On Edgar: "I'm very lucky to have my husband and my baby. I hate to be corny . . . but I'm so happy." END

Eight hours of time and thousands of dollars are spent for a five-second scene in a 'Mannix' episode

When a fiery crash to top off a segment of an upcoming Mannix episode was needed, Jon Burke, special-effects man for both Mannix and Mission: Impossible, went to work. He needed eight men working for eight hours to grade an 80-foot ramp in a gravel pit in Los Angeles's Griffith Park. Then they got the shell of a British Lotus 51 racing car (costing $2000), loaded it up with gas and launched it off the ramp. The result, as above, was: zoom; roar; crunch; crash; burn, burn. Of course the driver didn't walk away. Where does a dummy walk to when he's burned to a crisp?

From the time Peyton Place first went on the air nearly four years ago with Chris Connelly in the role of the rebellious youth "Norman Harrington," the fan magazines have kept him right up there with Liz and Dick and Jackie Kennedy as one of the staple sources of soap-opera fantasy, rivaling Peyton Place itself. Never has so much heartache and heartbreak, illicit romance and purple passion been attributed to one so clean-scrubbed, tousle-haired and snub-nosed.

I'd made a date with this 26-year-old cornfed Charm Boy to meet at his secluded bachelor pad in the Hollywood hills. It had been the first property the real-estate lady had shown him. Chris took it at once because of the tennis court.

Looking freshly tousled and casually pulled-together in low-slung Levi's and tennis sneakers, Chris leads the way to our conference spot. He's not the usual Charm Boy; he's sincere. He carries an armload of the colorful hyperimaginative periodicals we're going to talk about, dumps them on the floor, and we begin our exploration into fantasy journalism.

The first cover blurb trumpets: WHAT CHRIS COULDN'T CONFESS TILL NOW! After wading through 6000 words, and still not knowing what Chris is "confessing" to, we find in the last paragraph that he has a "hidden ambition." This guilty secret is that he wants to star in a movie.

CHRIS CONNELLY'S CLANDES-

What Is Chris Connelly's Secret Hatred?

Fan magazines,
that's what; and here are a few of the reasons

by Dick Hobson

TINE AFFAIR! This time we try the last paragraph first. The "affair" turns out to be a catered dinner.

But wait—this looks more promising. CHRIS CONNELLY'S CONFES-SION: I WAS A NEGRO FOR SIX MONTHS! Seems that when Chris first came to Hollywood, he was invited to stay at the home of his lifelong friend, Raleigh Holloway, a Negro and former houseman-butler to the oil-rich Con-nellys back in Kansas, where Chris was born. This is the article's denouement: "Gratefully, Chris stayed. He was one of the family. He was a Negro."

Chris jumps up angrily: "That title made it look like I was trying to get some personal publicity out of civil rights. I told Raleigh, 'I'm sorry it turned out this way. I wanted it to be something decent because of our long friendship.' Raleigh took one look at that title and just cracked up. He wasn't offended at all. But I was! Lies, lies, lies! They've no conscience!"

If there's one thing they don't prepare you for back in Wichita, it's hoopla—razzmatazz—the heady world of images promoted by press agency and promulgated by printing presses.

Why, Dixie Dean Trainer, the well-known "Queen of the Fan Magazines," freely admitted—indeed, boasted—on Pierre Berton's TV show recently: "We make up all these marvelous stories—and everybody loves it."

BERTON: Yes, but you write stories in which you say, for instance, that you went to the subject's home, when in fact you didn't go near it.

MRS. TRAINER: Well, you have to start somehow.

BERTON: You have quoted long discussions that have taken place on people's honeymoons. Did you take along a tape recorder or something?

MRS. TRAINER: No. That's sort of artistic dialog. I do interior dialog too. You know—sort of the subconscious mind "thinking."

BERTON: And yet people may not have thought these things at all?

MRS. TRAINER: Oh, I'm sure it never crossed their minds.

I mentioned this to Chris and asked him why, in view of the circumstances, he takes the fan magazines so seriously. "Because they are saying things about you! I realize it's all a big joke, but I still don't like anything written that isn't true! That's like being a phony. It offends my intelligence."

Not even his family takes it quite as big as Chris. "Dad told me, 'Laugh it off, son; it's nothing.' But when a story came out describing my father as a 'remote and angry man who deserted his family,' Dad was fit to be tied. I said, 'Just laugh it off, Dad!'"

The first time Chris ever saw a fan-mag story about himself was when he ducked out of 20th Century-Fox studio one day for a quick trip to the local drugstore. "It came completely out of the blue. There was my picture on the cover and SIX SECRET THINGS PAT TEACHES CHRIS ABOUT ROMANCE." "Pat" is Pat Morrow, a Pey- ton Place regular and Chris's on-screen "wife."

The story had the couple lying cozily together on the beach in Malibu, with Pat's hand "resting on his muscular arm, the nearness and warmth of his body sending a curious feeling up and down her spine." All the while, the story airily quoted the "thoughts" supposedly running through his mind.

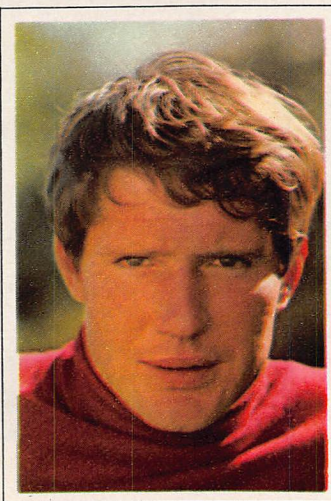

Says Chris: "I was totally shocked! We never felt, thought, said or did any of those things because we'd never been to the beach together!" In fact, according to Chris, they were nothing more than friends.

But the fan mags were on to a good thing and they ran with it: I KNOW ABOUT PAT MORROW'S PAST—AND STILL LOVE HER! For the effort invested in this article, the reader eventually reaps the following meager reward: "Chris knows that Pat's past has included only an innocent and youthful flirtation or two."

For the next couple of years, the fan mags preoccupied themselves with one of their favorite topics—"premarital intimacy." It started out innocuously enough with "OUR RELIGION IS HELPING US WAIT UNTIL MAR-RIAGE." Next thing you know it's PEYTON PLACE SHOCKER! CHRIS: "PAT AND I HAVEN'T HELD OURSELVES BACK!" One reads to the end only to discover it's all semantics.

Still they persisted. THE NIGHT PAT CRIED TO CHRIS: "PLEASE TREAT ME LIKE A BRIDE!" Next thing you know, it was PAT MOR—→

It started out as a simple peanut.

Like most products or ideas, peanuts started out plain and simple. And in most cases they would have remained that way but for the lively competition of nationally advertised brand names. The kind of competition that's turned the peanut into all the things it is today.

Brand names are what manufacturers call their products. You see them on every package. These product names compete with one another. Try to offer more. More variety. Satisfaction. Consistent quality. Value. And they let you know about it through advertising. Let you know the facts. And if they don't live up to what they say they don't have their names for very long.

When brand names compete, products get better. Ever notice?

ROW'S LOVE PROBLEM: HAVE I GIVEN CHRIS TOO MUCH?

Then, inevitably, OUR BABY WILL BE BEAUTIFUL has the young couple holding hands at midnight, sighing, murmuring and whispering up a storm. Chris is hoping for "a Chris Connelly, Junior, our son!"

"Isn't that too much?" asks Chris. "Pat and I really are just good friends, we have never discussed getting engaged, never talked about marriage, let alone having children!"

But the most outlandish fantasies in the fan-mag repertoire began with a cover story titled CHRIS & PAT: HOW CAN A LOVE LIKE OURS BE SO WRONG? The title question is given short shrift and the whole thrust of the piece shifts to, of all things, the socioeconomic condition of migratory Mexican-American grape-pickers! Chris and Pat visit a settlement in Delano, Cal., smell "the odor that bespoke of poverty," and "Chris, seeing some men digging a ditch beside the dirt road, took off his jacket and shirt and asked for a shovel so that he could help." While there they make friends with a young couple named "Julio and Azira."

This is too good to let drop. CHRIS & PAT: THEIR FORBIDDEN WEEK-ENDS! hit the stands a few months later. Chris returns to "help improve sanitary facilities" and in so doing becomes acquainted with another young couple—"Juan and Maria."

Months pass. A new cover blurb assaults the eye. CHRIS CONFESSES: MY LOVE FOR PAT DOESN'T STAND A CHANCE! Inside the magazine, they're off to the Delano vineyards again. This time they make friends with a couple named "Julio and Agera." (Surely not the same "Julio" we formerly met in conjunction with "Azira"?)

His ditches dug, there's a big going-away celebration. Toasts are toasted, and Chris and Pat drive back to Hollywood, never to return.

Says Chris: "My sister called from Kansas and said, 'That's so wonderful what you're doing!' I said, 'What am I doing?' She said, 'Digging ditches for those poor grapepickers!' Well, what am I supposed to say? I don't know any grapepickers. I don't know how to dig drainage ditches. The fact is, I never went off with Pat Morrow for weekends anywhere."

Some months ago Chris finally decided he'd had enough. "That's when I got on my little high horse and said, 'Charge!'" He wrote to the Los Angeles Times: "Their stories . . . are trying to spice up my romantic and personal life." He also wrote to the Association of Motion Picture & Television Producers: "This filthy practice will bury us! . . . Clean up this dirty mess!"

But the fan mags managed to get in their licks. Nancy Anderson, West Coast editor of Photoplay, publicly griped that readers find most actors and actresses today suffocatingly dull "primarily because they are dull."

Evidently neither the fan mags nor their readers have lost interest in Chris Connelly. Chris wearily hands me a copy of their latest ploy: CHRIS CALLS IT QUILTS! quoting him accurately for once: "When a story is made up just for story's sake, there's where I draw the line!" His stand, according to the piece, "rocked Hollywood." And the mag goes on to editorialize: "More people should have the guts to express their gripes in this age of conformity. Bravo, Chris—the hero of Peyton Place!"

Chris sinks to the floor, engulfed in the four-color clutter of his days and ways—his six-month "Negritude," the beach parties that never happened, the tender words of love never voiced, the phantoms of Julio and Azira, Juan and Maria, Julio and Agera, and the beautiful network of drainage ditches he never dug in the vineyards of Delano, Cal.
